PSYCHIATRIC REPORT: ALMA VOLANTE

HISTORY:

Alma Volante is a 31 year old female who first came to see me on January 14, 1982. She was extremely upset and tearful during the session, making it difficult to elicit a detailed history with specific dates. However, it seems Alma has been under an inordinate amount of stress for quite a long time. Specifically, she described rather severe marital problems occurring for several years, made worse after her son was born and her husband insisted upon her returning to work when the baby was quite young. She has felt very lonely for several years, wishing to see her family in the Phillipines, but being unable to do so because of finances and/or the baby. This situation became critical when her brother was killed in an automobile accident and she was unable to go home to be with her family and attend his funeral.

Alma stated she had never been in trouble with the law before the first shoplifting incident, nor has any member of her family. She said she has never stolen anything before, and was almost incoherent in describing her grief and puzzlement over why she had done such a thing. Both incidents were preceded by a "terrible fight" (verbal) with her husband the night before, which was the result of intense marital tension several weeks/months preceding.

DIAGNOSIS:

Adjustment Disorder with Mixed Disturbance of Emotions and Conduct. This diagnosis is defined by a maladaptive reaction to identifiable psychosocial stressors. Alma's maladaptive reaction was shoplifting; other (more common) reactions include suicide attempts, child abuse, drug abuse, etc. Alma's psychosocial stressors are multiple: 1) severe marital problems; 2) death of a family member; 3) loneliness and isolation.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

1. Intensive individual psychiatric treatment. Treatment to be aimed toward teaching stress management and coping skills that are adaptive, modifying her environment when and where possible, and relief of intrapsychic tension and conflict.
2. Marital therapy. This to be an essential part of her therapy program.

PROGNOSIS:

I believe the outlook for Alma in therapy is good over a period of time. She is bright, verbal, sensitive and willing to work in therapy. She has a stable career background and upbringing, which is certainly an asset to her psychological profile. ~~RAY HARRIS~~ Having a long history of "incidents", criminal or other sociopathic behaviors, her prognosis would not be nearly so good. However, in view of her background, family history and psychological evaluation, I believe she will do well in therapy. Having Alma serve a sentence is most likely to intensify her psychological trauma and isolation, ultimately delaying and prolonging her therapy.

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGE OF SAID COURT:
